Eddie Amos' Death Still Puzzles Police

Listed As Hit-Run Fatality

Benton township police were attempting to unwind the unusual circumstances surrounding the death of 16-year-old Eddie Lee Amos, whose body was found early Wednesday on Pipestone road.

Police reported no new developments this morning and were still listing the death as a hit-and-run accident. Amos' body was found 100 yards north of Townline road.

Police returned to the scene after daylight yesterday in an attempt to find new clues that might have been shielded by the night. They found no skidmarks or clues where the accident occurred.

Berrien sheriff's officers have also been questioning relatives and other persons Amos might have visited on Townline road before he died.

ROBBED AT KNIFEPOINT

The death occurred several hours after a Twin Cities tax driver, Edgar L. Bishop, 55, drove a youth to the Townline area and was robbed at knife-point of $23. Bishop said he picked the fare up on LaSalle avenue, Benton Harbor.

Bishop said today he did not think he would be able to identify the robber and has not been asked to take a look at the body by police. Bishop said he didn't get a good look at the man when he got in the back seat of the taxi Tuesday night. Bishop gave the robber $23, most of it his own.

It was the second time Bishop has been robbed. A year ago April 16, Bishop was robbed of $10 on Concord court is the Blossom acres housing project, Benton township.

Sixteen minutes before Amos' body was discovered, a voice identifying himself as Eddie Amos telephoned the Berrien sheriff's office and said he wanted to turn himself in for the taxi robbery.

Deputies reported earlier calls from a man identifying himself as Eddie Amos. The calls were threats on the lives of sheriff's officers, the department reported. Officers said it was highly unusual for a person to identify himself while making a threatening phone call.

Sheriff Bugged By Long Hair?

Injunction Asked Against Harvey

DETROIT (AP)—Washtenaw County Sheriff Douglas Harvey was accused Wednesday of ordering haircuts for eight jailed University of Michigan demonstrators because he feels long hair is a sign of change.

The statement was made in U.S. District Court by attorney Ernest Goodman, who is seeking an injunction prohibiting future hair-cutting of short-term prisoners in the jail.

In addition, the eight demonstrators have filed a $200,000 damage suit against Harvey.

"These plaintiffs had a right to their hair," Goodman said, "and the sheriff deprived them of that right. The growth of hair is a form of personal expression."

SHERIFF HARVEY Prefers Crewcut

Pointing to Harvey across the courtroom, Goodman said: "Now the sheriff there has short hair, and he instinctively dislikes long hair. He hates long hair because it is a sign of change."

Thomas Shea, a Washtenaw County assistant prosecutor who is defending the sheriff, argued that a haircut did not constitute an irreparable loss to the plaintiffs.

"The whole thing is frivolous," he said.

Harvey contends that the hair-cutting was normal procedure and was necessary to preserve good health in the jail.

The demonstrators were arrested Feb. 18 while staging a protest against campus recruiting by the General Electric Company. They were clipped bald before they could post bail.

Judge Lawrence Gubow is expected to announce a decision on the injunction Monday.

GIFT BOAT SINKS They Could Use It For Marine Laboratory

TRAVERSE CITY (AP)—Plans are underway today to pump out the U.S.S. Allegheny in Grand Traverse Bay but the cause of a leak which hit the ship yesterday has still not been discovered.

The 143-foot ship began taking water yesterday morning and a crew with pumps was sent aboard. However, efforts to halt the flow were futile. The ship is now resting on the bottom in 14 feet of water but its decks remain above the water line.

The ship was acquired last year by Northwest Michigan College at Traverse City for use in its Great Lakes maritime academy program.

Astronaut Training As Backup

Saturday
Launch Still In Question

CAPEKENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Backup astronaut John L. Swigert Jr. begins a crash training program today to determine whether he can replace a measles-threatened member of the Apollo 13 crew in time to take off for the moon Saturday.

Swigert is to climb aboard a spaceship simulator with James A. Lovell Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr. to practice such critical maneuvers as rendezvous and docking in lunar orbit and abort situations on the launch pad and near the moon.

The big question is whether Swigert, who has never flown in space, can work smoothly with the other two in maneuvers that require close and rapid coordination.

Lovell, Haise and Thomas K. Mattingly II have practiced together as a team more than two years; first as backup pilots for Apollo 11, man's first moon-landing mission, and then as the prime crew for Apollo 13. Observers say they are a superbly coordinated team.

Mattingly hasn't been dropped from the mission, but all indications are that he will be because of his exposure and lack of immunity to German measles.

Lovell, the Apollo 13 commander and a veteran of three previous space flights, reportedly voiced initial opposition to a late substitution, but later agreed to give Swigert a chance. Lovell may make the final decision after the trials are complete Friday.

POSTPONEMENT SOUGHT

The commander, according to informed sources, preferred postponing the flight from Saturday until the next favorable launch date, May 9, so he could keep his crew intact.

Lovell and Haise hope to land in the ancient lunar highlands of Fra Mauro, and Saturday is the only day in April in which they could be launched to reach that target.

Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' personal physician, said Wednesday night that Mattingly's chances of catching German measles are "very, very high."

Mattingly would be retained as a member of the Apollo 13 crew only if his blood samples showed a sudden rise in antibodies to German measles. Berry said this was unlikely, but tests were continuing.

The carrier of the disease who exposed the other Apollo 13 crewmen is Charles Duke, one of the backup astronauts along with Swigert and John W. Young. Blood tests showed that Lovell, Haise and Swigert are immune to the disease, but not Mattingly.

Berry said Duke apparently caught the measles from children of a friend in the astronaut community near Houston's Manned Spacecraft Center.

Pedestrian Killed

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Mr. Sadie Griffin, 56, of Grand Rapids was injured fatally Wednesday when struck by a truck while she was walking near her home.

RASH APPEARS

Although Duke did not break out in a rash until last Sunday, he was infectious four days before that, when he had considerable contact with the other Apollo 13 crewmen. With an incubation period of 14-21 days, that means that Mattingly could come down with measles during the critical period when he would be orbiting the moon alone while Lovell and Haise were on the surface.

That could affect his ability to conduct the rendezvous and docking maneuvers after Lovell and Haise launched themselves from the moon.

Each astronaut team has a tendency to develop its own procedures in months of working and living together.

Swigert, although well qualified to work with Young and Duke, might not fit the pattern of Lovell and Haise, especially in the fast-paced requirements

Man Killed By Tractor In Allegan

OTSEGO—Donald Hall, 70, of rural Otsego, was killed Wednesday when the tractor he was driving while skidding logs in a woods overturned on him.

Allegan county sheriff's deputies said Hall's son, Dale, told them he saw his father at 11 a.m., but his father failed to come home for lunch. The son found his father in the woods, 4½ miles north of Otsego. He was pronounced dead at the scene by deputy medical examiner, Dr. Janis Pone of Martin.

The body was taken to the Marshall-Green funeral home in Plainwell.

Budget Okayed For Special Ed

Berrien School Board Sets
It At $1,015,300

BERRIEN SPRINGS—The Berrien County Intermediate school board here last night unanimously adopted a tentative 1970-71 countywide special education budget of $1,015,300 up $116,625 from the current year.

The tentative budget, subject to change by actual local and state funds available, compares with this year's $898,675. Extra money is needed for expanded programs to handicapped or disabled children plus 6 to 8 per cent increases in teacher salaries, according to District Supt. Doyle Barkmeier and Walter Wend, the district's special education director.

The $1-million plus budget is predicated on increased revenue (from an increased Berrien tax base) from a permanent 2½ of a mill county voted special education tax and increased state aid.

Last year, for example, the 2½ of a mill produced an estimated $506,000 with the state paying the balance. If local-state revenues are insufficient for the program this year, it will be cut back, Wend said.

Special education pays more than 100 local school district teachers plus classrooms, special supplies and administration costs to train some 2,000 Berrien county children handicapped emotionally, physically and mentally. It also reaches hundreds of other children through school social workers and a variety of screening and counseling programs.

Wend noted one large increase for 1970-71—25 per cent more for trainable mentally handicapped children.

There are more who would benefit from the larger program, Wend said.

Before the special education budget is finally adopted it must be approved for millage by the Berrien county tax allocation board and the intermediate district must learn exactly how much in state funds is available, Barkmeier said.

Final approval is expected in June.

Also last night the Intermediate board contracted with the community mental health services board of Berrien county to operate a day care center in Royalton township for severely retarded children in 1970-71. About two dozen children currently are in the center at the old Royal school on U.S. 33. The contract is for $50,000 and funds are obtained by the mental health services board from the state to pay contract costs. The new contract is largely the same as the old 1969-70 contract.

The Intermediate board also approved March bills for $16,500.

St. Mary's Freighters Ice-Bound

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (AP)—Thirteen Canadian and U.S. freighters remained ice-bound Wednesday in the upper St. Mary's River.

Nine of the freighters are bound downstream with loads of iron ore from Lake Superior ports.

The U.S. Coast Guard ice-breakers Mackinaw and Woodrush were freeing the freighters.

A third Coast Guard vessel went to the lower St. Mary's channel to make two-way ship-River to break a down-bound channel to make two-way shipping possible through the river.

Byrd said the real issue is ending an era of judicial activism and returning to strict construction of the Constitution and laws.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who voted for Carswell, said in an interview "It might be a good idea to wait and see how the elections go. It might be a good issue."

'TOO LONG'

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., the GOP whip and the key man in the futile effort to line up Carswell support, said he does not think the seat should remain vacant until after elections. "That's too long," he said.

"It's going to be a political issue anyhow," he said. "Something as big as this that happens in the Senate is bound to be a part of the campaign."

Some Republican senators are urging President Nixon to consult them before submitting another nomination.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said another nomination will be made "in due course," and he did not rule out the possibility Nixon might wait until

GOP May Not Help Rebels

Nixon Urged To Go Slow
On Selection

WASHINGTON (AP)—That vacancy on the Supreme Court—and the long, bitter struggle it symbolizes—may be the major issue of the coming congressional election campaigns.

President Nixon will supply the Republican signal when he sets a timetable for selecting a new nominee, a third choice for the seat the Senate denied G. Harrold Carswell.

Sen. Robert J. Doyle, R-Kans., already has wired the President, and followed up with a telephone call, urging the postponement of any new court appointment until after the Nov. 3 congressional elections.

GO TO VOTERS

That way, Dole said, Nixon could take to the voters the issue of a court shift from activism to a more conservative course.

"He didn't say yes and he didn't say no," Dole said after making his suggestion to Nixon. "But he did say this is going to take some time."

If it takes until campaign time, that in itself will be a political signal, and the Senate rejection of Southern conservatives Carswell and Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. will echo through the autumn oratory.

"They've raised the issue that the people don't want," Carswell said. "Well, they're not going to get Carswell. But do they want to change the court?"

"It may be easier to change the Senate than to change the Supreme Court," Dole said.

"I believe that would backfire on the Republicans," said Oklahoma Sen. Fred R. Harris, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee. "Are they going to purge members of their own party?"

Thirteen Republicans joined 38 Democrats in voting to reject Carswell 51 to 45. Three of them, Sens. Winston L. Prouty of Vermont, Charles Goodell of New York, and Hiram L. Fong of Hawaii, are up for election this year.

Carswell's Senate champions urged Nixon to press again for a conservative justice. Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., and a half-dozen colleagues, put that in political terms, too. "The American people spoke clearly in 1968 in favor of a stricter interpretation of the laws," Hruska said.

"They will tire of seeing frustrated your efforts to restructure the Supreme Court philosophically," Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., wired the President.

Byrd said the real issue is ending an era of judicial activism and returning to strict construction of the Constitution and laws.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who voted for Carswell, said in an interview "It might be a good idea to wait and see how the elections go. It might be a good issue."

Like Rubbing SALT In Old Suspicions

The second round of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) between the United States and the Soviet Union begins in Vienna today.

The two nations approach the parley with something less than burning optimism. Unlike the ten-week discussion held from Nov. 17 to Dec. 22, 1969 in Helsinki, the new talks have been preceded by complaints from both sides. Washington warns of the threat of Soviet power; Moscow complains of the aggressive intentions of the Americans.

Perhaps the most encouraging thing about the negotiations is that they are being held. Never before in the quarter-century of cold war have the two super powers felt sufficiently comfortable with each other — despite the querulous rhetoric — to begin talks aimed at freezing the balance of nuclear weaponry. The crushing costs of defense are bearing heavily on both.

Treaties signed in the past decade — limiting nuclear testing, banning nuclear weapons from certain areas and outer space, and preventing their spread to smaller countries — are preliminary to what is hoped will emerge from hard bargaining in Vienna. "What we hope we can do," says Secretary of State William P. Rogers, "is negotiate an arms-limitation agreement that will keep us in the same relative position . . . and which can be verified."

There are indications that the Nixon administration will not reach a firm bargaining position until the eve of the meeting.

Infighting is under way within the administration and Congress between those who want to see a halt in the arms race and those who fear the offensive intentions of the Soviet Union. The President, in his report on the state of the world last Feb. 18, touched both bases. He spoke of the "good beginning" made in negotiations with the Soviet Union. But he expressed concern about the build-up of Russian strategic forces.

For their part, the Russians have berated the United States for seeking weapons "superiority" over the Soviet Union. Moscow believes a virtual arms parity exists that should not be disturbed. Strong attacks have been launched in the Soviet press against the U.S. decision to proceed with the second phase of the Safeguard anti-missile (ABM) system and the forthcoming deployment of Minuteman III missiles tipped with multiple independently targetable warheads (MIRV). But the Russians have been working on their own version of these systems for some time.

Both nations could use their missile billions better on other projects. Washington and Moscow politicians both would probably like to. But even if they felt they could trust each other, there's still Red China.

The cycle's a tough one to break; the outlook isn't promising.

U.S. Lecture Circuit-- Big And Sensational

Gone are the days of Oscar Wilde's triumphant lecture tours across America or Dylan Thomas' coast-to-coast binges. Today lecturing has become a highly competitive, $100 million-a-year business — with the emphasis on volume rather than on quality. Every town hall, trade association and chapter of the Elks, Moose, and Kiwanis has its own lecture series — featuring the biggest names it can afford.

Many Americans are prepared to pay for an occasional face-to-face confrontation with the famous or near famous. Contrary to what one might expect, claims one Boston-based lecture bureau, the more the public sees TV celebrities on their home screens, the more anxious they are to go out and see them on a platform.

Congressmen, Supreme Court justices, basketball stars, columnists, famous doctors, ballet dancers, and gurus are all on the road. Playwright Le Roi Jones, Dr. Spock, Cassius Clay, Kitty Carlisle, Ralph Nader and Art Buchwald represent the wide range of speakers. However, women's clubs and town halls generally prefer the lighter, escapist talks. In 1970 hardly anyone is willing to pay to have a high-ranking official or military expert speak about Viet Nam.

Lecturers find that the pay is good. Sen. Barry Goldwater made more than $60,000 in 1968 in lecture fees alone. And cartoonist Al Capp never takes under $3,000 for a lecture.

The biggest demand for lectures no longer comes from old ladies clubs but from the more than 4,000 colleges and universities. Because they have lived so long on a TV diet, the younger generation wants flesh and blood. Many small colleges believe that a generous sprinkling of lecturers is a good way to supplement the academic program.

Student organizations are almost autonomous in choosing whom they want. And what they want are "pop attractions," that is, speakers with shock value. The main demand on the campuses today, according to Robert Keedick, head of a New York-based bureau, is for Negro militants or drug-culture gurus like Dr. Timothy Leary.

This sudden demand for the sensational is, in one sense, a litmus test of the mood of the country. Among the most popular topics today are the generation gap, ecology, and the occult. Of course, any speaker who attacks the establishment is certain to get a rousing ovation on most campuses from coast to coast.

Telephone Crush

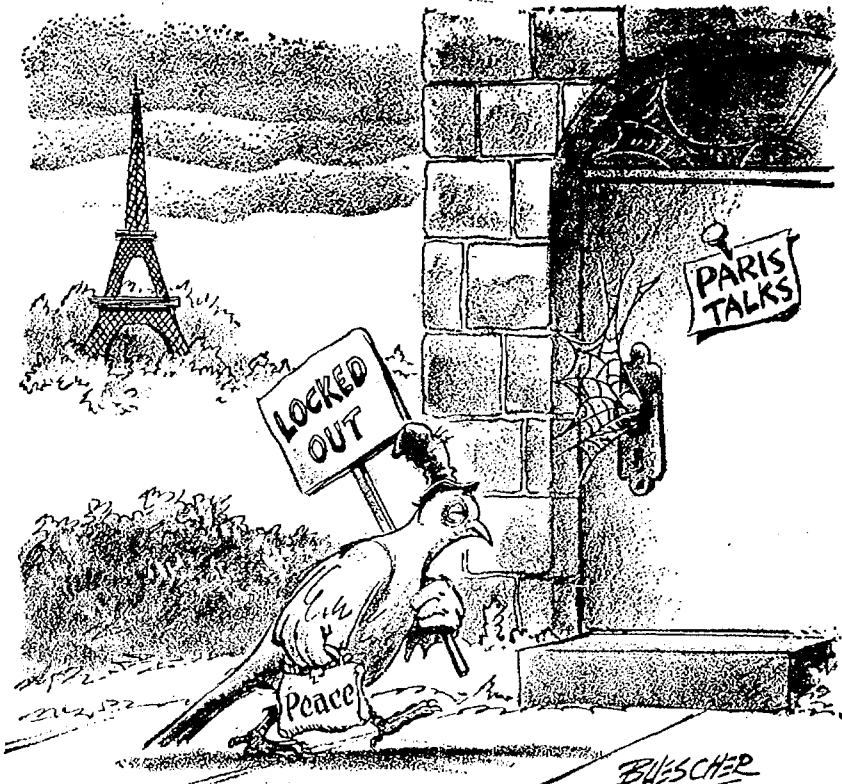

Whatever else Alexander Graham Bell started when he invented the telephone, he certainly deserves credit for spanning the communications gap. Well, credit may not be exactly the word.

Every year telephone companies in the U. S. install millions of new instruments. In many places, more telephones are installed than there are additions to the population. Washington, D. C., for instance.

One might expect to find the greatest concentration of telephones in the nation's capital. According to the latest telephone records, there now are more phones than people in Washington. No one seems to know precisely how many people live in Washington (the ebb and flow of politics, perhaps?), but all estimates claim fewer people than the 860,000 telephones now in use.

No other city comes close to Washington in the telephone-to-people ratio. New York City probably is second, with 70 phones per 100 inhabitants. The U. S. average is 54. Paris has something of a continental record with 57; London has 41, and Tokyo 36.

Then there is Mexico City, with only nine telephones for each 100 residents. No wonder the Latins are still able to enjoy an afternoon siesta.

DR. COLEMAN

..And Speaking Of Your Health

I am thirty-five years of age, and healthy and I hesitate very much to discuss this with my doctor. My wife and I have our fifth child and due to the increasing world problems, we believe we have done our share. I am sure other men would appreciate some discussion of the operation which sterilizes the male. Are there physical changes in this operation as well as psychological effects?

Mr. R. W. Maine
Dear Mr. W.:
Not a day passes without a letter that includes the inability to discuss some problem with one's doctor. It is inconceivable to me that patients do not truly appreciate the mature and vital bond that exists between them and their doctors. In your case, do you really believe that a discussion of your problem carries with it any sense of shame? It does not.

Your doctor has undoubtedly, within a lifetime of practice, answered your question many times to others who were free enough to ask it. People deprive themselves of the advantages of their doctor's understanding by such an unrealistic attitude.

I have repeatedly stated in these columns that the information they contain is not my private property, but that which is common knowledge to doctors everywhere. No newspaper or magazine article can possibly replace the value of your own doctor.

As a writer, my aim is to reinforce the relationship between you and your doctor rather than to separate you. If this concept is understood by my readers, then it will be more valuable than the actual answer about the sterilization of the male.

Your decision to consider sterilization, of course, an individual one and must be the result of combined thinking by you and your wife. When you say you "believe you have done your share" you most certainly have, and it is understandable that some way to limit further growth of your family is being considered.

An operation, Vasectomy, is one by which a tiny tube that carries the male sperm is either cut, tied or closed. This tube, the vas deferens, is altered by a simple operation usually performed under local anesthesia. Shortly after the operation, sperm no longer can flow through the tube, and pregnancy is thereby avoided. The operation is successful in almost all cases when it is well performed with one of the many modern techniques.

You wisely ask if there are any psychological effects following this simple but permanent operation. I say permanent, even though there are occasional reports that the tube can be reopened by another operation. A series of new surgical techniques are being tried to make this a reversible operation. Temporary clips are being tried, because too often people regret that they have permanently become infertile.

Occasionally, some people with a delicate psychological balance may become severely depressed by a decision that cannot be changed. It is for this reason that I suggest intensive discussion between your doctor before irreversible surgery is entertained. Psychological guidance and advice may be of extreme value so that you will not punish yourself in the future for an impulsive decision.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH: Poor speech in a young child should be remedied quickly.

Declarer will occasionally reach a point in the play where he knows he is licked if the defenders' cards are divided one way, but where he can make the contract if they are divided another way. Obviously, he should proceed in such cases on the assumption that the adverse cards are favorably divided for him.

Take this hand where it would be easy to go wrong. South gets to six hearts on the bidding shown and West leads the king of spades. Declarer wins with the ace and makes the normal play of a heart to the ace. West showing out. This unfavorable development might cause declarer to panic by attempting to cash the A-K-Q of clubs in an effort to discard his spade loser, but this method of play is clearly wrong and in the actual case would result in the loss of the contract.

South should realize that it is impossible for East to have been dealt as many as three clubs and he should therefore not embark on a course of play that is sure to lead to defeat.

He can tell from the bidding that East, for his jump overall in three diamonds, must have at least six diamonds. South already knows from the play that East started with four hearts and at least one spade.

With eleven of East's cards in three suits accounted for, South knows for a dead certainty that East cannot have three clubs, and that it would be utterly futile to attempt to discard his spade loser at this point.

His only hope, therefore, is to play on the basis that East was dealt only one spade. Accordingly, he should cash the king of hearts and continue with the jack. Regardless of what East returns, South is bound to make the slam.

Then we start throwing cream pies in each other's faces. Then, for a finale, we dash up and down aisles smacking the pies on all the bald heads in the audience."

"That's some act," murmured the agent, shaking his head. "What are you going to

Bills Rapped By County Appear Doomed: Zollar

State Sen. Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, doubts that two bills attacked sharply by Berrien county elected officials have much chance of passing the state legislature.

One of the bills would give county boards of commissioners the right to fill vacancies in offices such as clerk and register of deeds if the elected official resigned.

Stevensville Man Held In Shooting Incident

Berrien sheriff's officers arrested a 21-year-old Stevensville man Wednesday in connection with a gunshot wound Kathy Kilisz, 17, of Route 2, Buchanan, received in the right thigh.

with the power, a board could squeeze an elected official if didn't like into resigning, and then name a handpicked successor.

County Clerk Forrest (Hank) Kesterke, Register of Deeds Judith Litke and Prosecutor Ronald Taylor joined in blasting the proposal.

Unfair To Farmers, Says Gast

Michigan Tax Commission Will Get Case

By BRANDON BROWN
Staff Writer

Lincoln township plans to appeal for a cut in its share of the new Berrien county tax equalization increase because it's unfair to farmers, according to Township Supervisor Harry Gast.

The appeal to the state tax commission in Lansing would contend the county equalization study over-values Lincoln farm land by treating it all as potential subdivisions.

"I don't think we have any right . . . to tell a farmer, 'You have to quit farming because your land is too valuable,'" Gast said.

"A farm is a farm until it's subdivided or put to a different usage. Then it should bear the new usage assessment."

UNFAIR INCREASE

Gast contends the county equalization study — a revaluation of real and residential property throughout Berrien released last month — would result in an unfair across-the-board increase in property valuations in the township because the township is unable at this date to put the assessment burden on farmers.

And that burden by itself is unfair, Gast said, because it treats all farmland as potential subdivisions with values so high as to tax farmers out of business.

In last month's equalization report, Lincoln township real property was valued at $34.2 million for taxing purposes, a 16.3 per cent increase. This did not include new property added in 1969 and taxable in 1970. The average increase countywide was 11.25 per cent.

Gast's reaction to the county equalization report is based on a difference in assessing philosophy.

"We operate on what the property is worth, regardless of who owns it or for what purpose it's used," said Charles Knapp, head of the county equalization department.

"We don't operate on any different philosophy in Lincoln than anywhere else."

Gast did not hold out much hope that the state tax commission would see assessments his way and hinted the township might go beyond the commission to the courts.

Other township supervisors support him "even to the point of financial assistance," Gast said.

ADDED ELSEWHERE
If Lincoln wins a reduction in assessment after the county equalization report is adopted, the amount of Lincoln's reduction will be added to the assessments on other units in Berrien because Berrien's total worth for taxing purposes once adopted cannot be altered. The added assessments on other municipalities would be at a rate equal to their percentage of the total county valuation, Knapp said.

He also noted that it is his understanding municipalities would be unable to collect taxes — summer taxes, for example — during the appeal.

The most recent appeal from a county equalization report was in 1962 when Benton Harbor and St. Joseph won a reduction from an increased personal property assessment.

State Welfare Study Panel Plans BH Hearings Tuesday

Gov. William Milliken's Welfare Study commission will hold public hearings in Benton Harbor Tuesday, April 14. The sessions replace those which were postponed March 26 because of a blizzard.

The hearings will be in the auditorium of the Benton Harbor Public Library from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Ronald O. Warner, chairman of the Study Commission, said that Emmett Roche, executive director of Social Services of the Archdiocese of Detroit, will be chairman of the hearing.

Representatives of various government agencies and private organizations are urged to participate.

"These hearings are also being conducted to give citizens the opportunity to offer their views on any aspect of the welfare program in Michigan," Warner said.

The governor's commission consists of 20 members — 12 from the public and eight members of the Legislature.

"We will wait to see what cooperation we receive in circuit court from Mr. Finch before taking action on this warrant," Buhl said.

Oneida Coleman and John Willie Neal were bound over to Van Buren County Circuit Court Tuesday on a charge of first degree murder in the death of L. V. Taylor of Benton Harbor.

Wild Auto Chase Ends In Arrest

St. Joseph Patrolman Joseph Garski arrested Mrs. Carol Ann Beckman, 19, of Route 1, Stevensville, early today on charges of fleeing a police officer and possession of dangerous drugs.

Garski said he made the arrest after a 100-mile-an-hour police chase from St. Joseph to the Whirlpool Administration Center on US 31-33. The chase started at Main and Port streets.

Garski said Mrs. Beckman had several kinds of prescription pills in her possession at the time of arrest.

The chase started when the patrolman attempted to stop Mrs. Beckman for speeding.

Whirlpool Union Plans Strike Vote

Members of the union representing 1,300 employees of Whirlpool's St. Joseph division are scheduled to vote Sunday on authorizing a strike if no new contract settlement is reached by May 6.

Edward Kepp, business manager of Local 1918, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM), said the voting would follow a full report on current contract talks.

The union and firm opened bargaining in March to replace an existing three-year agreement which expires at midnight May 6. So far, seven sessions have been held. An eighth is scheduled for Monday.

Kepp said the union voting session would be held at Benton Harbor high school between 2:30 and 5 p.m. All union members in good standing, he said, will be eligible to vote.

'NO PROGRESS'

The union official said "in summarizing the developments and progress of the past seven sessions, no progress whatsoever has been made. It is the opinion of the Local 1918 negotiating committee that strong and forceful action of our membership will be necessary before the firm will get down to serious bargaining."

Ronald Statz, industrial relations director for the division who is heading up the firm's bargaining team, had no comment to make on the union's statement. The meeting on authorizing a strike, if necessary, is a normal procedure for the union, the company spokesman said.

Benton Man Apologizes To Court

SOUTH HAVEN — William Finch, Benton township funeral home owner, has apologized to the Seventh District Court for not answering a subpoena as a witness during a preliminary examination of two persons charged in the shooting death of a Benton Harbor man.

Finch, of 1102 East Main street, contacted District Judge Donald M. Goodwillie, Jr., and Van Buren County Prosecutor issued a show-cause bench warrant when Finch failed to appear earlier this week.

Finch said he had business obligations which prevented him from attending, according to the prosecutor's office.

The bench warrant will be held in abeyance until circuit court proceedings for the case begin, Buhl said.

Guilty Plea Halts Trial

A 17-year-old Benton Harborite pleaded guilty Wednesday, the same day his trial was set, to a charge of breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling.

Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns accepted the plea from Stephen Bruce Horace, of 299 Walnut street, and continued him free on $1,000 bond until sentencing.

Horace was accused of breaking into the Norbert Cramer home at 570 Columbus avenue, Benton Harbor, last Oct. 4.

Ah-h-h, Spring! But Heat Wave Temporary

Southwestern Michigan enjoyed its warmest day of the year Wednesday after being lashed by blizzards the past two weeks. The temperature climbed into the low 70s, melting all snow except on shady slopes and roadside banks. Stiff winds of up to 30 miles created the incongruity of dust blowing while snow was still on the ground.

The weather forecaster said the heat wave was only temporary. The temperature wasn't supposed to get much over 50 today. There is a possibility of showers for the weekend.

MERCURY CONTAMINATION STIRS CONFUSION

'City Hall'
Is Beaten
In CassLand Developer
Wins Fight Over
Mobile Homes

CASSOPOLIS — A mobile home subdivision developer has beaten Silver Creek township's attempt to thwart lot sales in four mobile home subdivisions on Indian Lake near here.

A recently-released opinion by Berrien Circuit Judge Karl F. Zick, expected to be followed soon by a judgment covering the same ground, declares developer Jabez Love the winner in a suit to prevent the township from interfering with lot sales.

The township unsuccessfully claimed Love was operating a nuisance under an interim and permanent zoning ordinance and sought to prevent the further sale of subdivision lots.

Love, through Benton Harbor Atty. Royce DeFrancesco, successfully claimed the subdivisions were under development with the knowledge of the township officials before the interim zoning ordinance was enacted in 1967. Further, he successfully claimed the township improperly interfered in the sale of lots to mobile home owners and the permanent installation of mobile homes on these lots.

Non-jury trial on Love's suit against the township was held Nov. 25 and 26 in Cassopolis before Judge Zick, who sat in place of Cass Circuit Judge James Hoff who had disqualified himself from hearing the case.

Judge Zick granted Love a permanent injunction preventing a township from interfering with subdivision lot sales.

The judge declared in his opinion that the township acted reasonably and arbitrarily in moves to stall the sale of the subdivisions.

Township officials in early 1967 granted Love 30 mobile home permits, but as the homes went in, the township passed an interim zoning ordinance prohibiting mobile homes so the township revoked the permits, Atty. DeFrancesco said.

Love then petitioned the township board for permission to install mobile homes under nonconforming use and this was first granted and later denied, DeFrancesco said.

Judge Zick's opinion found that the township applied the interim zoning ordinance against Love arbitrarily while an adjoining landowner, Maurice Rupe, was allowed to have mobile homes on his land before and after the zoning ordinance, even without a trailer park license.

Defendants refused to allow plaintiffs (Love and his company) similar treatment. Judge Zick's opinion said, "This is in violation of the general requirements for the application of zoning ordinances and the courts of this state have generally found that such discrimination violates the privilege of parties."

Love, who lives in one of the four subdivisions, acquired the land in 1962 and has spent more than $100,000 in developing it. There are about 88 lots. Judge Zick said his actions in addition canceled criminal prosecutions against Love subdivision mobile homes "red-tagged" as violating township ordinance.

LMC Black Students
To Serve 'Demands'

New Organization Recognized

By JERRY KRIEGER
County-Farm Editor

Officers of a newly recognized Black Student Federation at Lake Michigan college said Wednesday their organization would serve a list of "demands" on the college administration early next week.

While they said they were not ready to reveal the nature of their demands, they indicated a higher percentage of black students in the school was a major concern with them.

Formal recognition as a campus organization was given to the federation Wednesday afternoon by a unanimous vote of the LMC student senate.

Recognition was voted after leaders of the group presented a constitution for the student governing body's consideration. The constitution provides for members to work for the interest and welfare of black students on the campus, but does not limit the membership to Negro students.

President Charles James, a Niles freshman, said the federation is the first organization at the school designed to bring all black students together.

College officials said black student enrollment at the institution amounts to about 10 percent of the total student body in the day and evening departments. Of a total student figure of 2,208, Admissions Director Thomas McCourt said 210 are black students. He added there are approximately 100 blacks among the 1,038 full-time students in the day program, but that an exact count was not available in this category.

Officers of the new group, in addition to President James, are: Curtis McFall, Benton Harbor, vice president; Connie Harvey, Benton Harbor, recording secretary; Lorna Boston, Covert, corresponding secretary; and Leroy Tisdell, Benton Harbor, treasurer.

One of several drivers who reportedly took pokes at other drivers in a series of unrelated episodes on a sunny day last Saturday was arrested by St. Joseph police yesterday.

Kenneth Gene Lausman, 29, of Route 3, Benton Harbor, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery and was assessed a fine and cost of $51. He appeared before Fifth District Judge Paul Pollard.

Lausman was charged with assaulting Kenneth M. Schulz, 16, of 500 Wayne street, St. Joseph, after following him from Main and Riverview streets in Benton Harbor to a traffic signal in St. Joseph.

Two other motorists were assaulted by short-tempered motorists Saturday and a married couple was followed into Benton Harbor by a man with a gun.

State Yet
To Test
Single FishTalks Needed
With Federal,
Foreign Agencies

LANSING (AP) — Despite promises of prompt action in dealing with mercury contamination in Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River, top Michigan conservation officials have yet to test a single fish.

Moreover, the state apparently still is without any coordinated plan or system of communicating with federal and foreign officials.

There are even serious questions about the adequacy of funds, laboratory equipment and trained personnel.

And little agreement about precisely what tests should be conducted to decide whether or not Lake St. Clair and Detroit River perch and pickerel (or walleye pike are dangerously contaminated).

Meanwhile, commercial fishermen as well as wholesalers and retailers of other fish products protest that misleading statements by public officials have caused them to suffer substantial losses because a frightened public has stopped buying any seafood at all.

'PUBLIC MISINFORMED'

"Our sales are nil because the public is misinformed," said C.J. Todd, lobbyist for the Great Lakes Fisheries Council, an organization of primarily Michigan retailers and wholesalers. "People are relating everything to mercury, but only one per cent of the total Michigan sales is caught here," Todd said.

He said about 200,000 pounds of pickerel (or walleye) and 800,000 pounds of perch are sold annually in Michigan out of more than five million pounds in all.

"Ninety-nine per cent of it comes from Idaho and the ocean," Todd said.

These revelations came Wednesday at a meeting of the Conservation Committee of the Michigan House to hear testimony by B. Dale Ball, Agriculture Department director, Ralph W. Purdy, executive secretary of the Michigan Water Resources Commission and Wayne Tody, fish division chief of the Natural Resources Department.

Those three and their aides sought to explain to the legislative committee the reasoning behind Gov. William G. Milliken's warning that fish from Detroit-area waters should not be eaten as a "temporary precaution" despite official recommendations that the state need not ban sport or commercial fishing as Canada has done.

Warning of a potential health hazard first came on March 24 when Ontario provincial officials banned the sale and export of perch and pickerel by Canadian fishermen because tests showed dangerously high mercury content.

Shortly afterward, U.S. officials seized fish from Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie and clamped a similar prohibition on exporting because studies showed a mercury content of more than 0.5 parts per million.

On Friday, Milliken received a report from state officials which concluded that:

"Based on all available information, there is no evidence of any acute or chronic health problem due to mercury contamination of the water or fish."

ISSUED WARNING

But on Monday, two days ago, Milliken issued his precautionary warning. He also said he was asking a prompt meeting between his own experts and Canadian counterparts.

By Tuesday afternoon, however, no such meeting had been arranged and rampant confusion appeared to reign on most agencies involved.

"I don't think anyone really knows how long this cycle of mercury is going to plague us," said Tody. "But I'm sure we're going to have a great many fish exceed 0.5 parts per million from Port Huron on south."

U.S. Food and Drug Administration standards for food stipulate any mercury is unacceptable.

Purdy told the committee that despite assurances by companies such as Dow Chemical Co. of Canada that no mercury has been coming from their plants, the discharge has gone on for years.

High Level
Of Poison
Is ReleasedDanger Goes
Undetected
At Ludington

LUDINGTON (AP) — For two weeks no one knew that extremely high levels of poisonous cyanide were released into Ludington's sewer system in a nearby lake.

City and state officials did not know until March 30 — fifteen days after between 800 and 1,500 gallons of an eight per cent cyanide solution accidentally spilled into the sewers — how strongly concentrated the poison was.

The cyanide poured out March 15 when electrocyclic action ate a small hole in a 12,000-gallon tank at the Straits Steel and Wire Co.

Ken Baars, manager of the treatment plant, said he had about three hours warning before the cyanide flooded through the sewers to his plant.

All available chlorine — five times the normal amount used in sewage treatment — was poured into the poisonous waste but Baars said his test showed it was not enough.

But even Baars did not learn until March 30 that 88 parts per million of cyanide remained in the treated waste as it left the plant. A State Department of Natural Resources test, returned to Baars March 30, finally revealed the concentration of cyanide remaining in the treated wastes.

Frank Vining, a water quality supervisor from the department's Cadillac, Mich., office, said the delay in learning how strong cyanide was occurred due to "a mixup in communications."

Information about the cyanide leak did not become public until Monday night, when Ludington's council held its first regular meeting following return of the lab tests.

City Manager James Cartier said the city did all it could to detoxify the cyanide and said he doubts any of the poison reached Lake Michigan, less than three miles from the sewer plants' outlet on Pere Marquette Lake. But Baars said he believed some of the cyanide did reach the great lake, although cold water diluted it still further as it swept through Pere Marquette Lake.

Cartier said he did little Wednesday except answer calls asking whether Ludington's water supply was safe. He said dozens of calls came to his office, including some from as far away as Florida.

"The whole thing is ridiculous," Cartier declared repeatedly.

Cartier refused to blame anyone for the leakage, describing the incident as an unpreventable accident.

Donald Pierce, chief of the State Health Department's Waste Water Division, said Ludington officials have been soft on industry pollution in the past.

How dangerous was the situation?

Vining said 88 parts per million of cyanide is "an extremely high level" and it certainly was dangerous. He added, "technically, there should be zero cyanide coming out of any plant."

State officials, including Gov. William Milliken, expressed concern and surprise when they learned of the incident from newsmen.

Milliken said Wednesday his office is "taking steps" to make certain information about such events becomes public quickly. The governor called the discharge of such materials into Michigan waters "intolerable."

Maurice Richmond, assistant chief of the Waste Water Division in the State Health Department, said both the department and the State Water Resources Commission should have been told of the cyanide leakage at once. But Richmond said he knew nothing about the mishap until Tuesday.

Despite official declarations of ignorance about the cyanide discharge, a health department inspector, Fred Eyer, made an investigation in Ludington the day after the cyanide discharge occurred.

Eyer insisted Wednesday that he made a written report to Lansing mentioning the cyanide discharge.

Senate Backing
Doe Season BanMoratorium Would Affect Deer Hunt In UP

LANSING (AP)—The Michigan Senate wants the State Natural Resources Department to clamp a nearly year-long moratorium on the killing of antlerless deer in the Upper Peninsula.

By a 21-2 vote Wednesday, the Senate adopted a resolution requesting the moratorium for the year 1970.

In addition, the resolution asks the department to review the status of the deer herd in the Lower Peninsula and "whenever feasible reduce the number of antlerless deer to be taken."

TELLS OPPOSITION

"That's like do-it-yourself brain surgery," declared acting Lt. Gov. Thomas Schweigert, a Republican Senator from Petoskey, who, with Sen. Basil Brown, D-Highland Park, voted against the measure.

"We've got a group of people in the department who do the job," Schweigert said. "We don't tell any other department what to do. Why should we tell them?"

The resolution, introduced early last month by Senate Conservation Chairman Gordon Rockwell, R-Mount Morris, still faces consideration in the House. If adopted in the lower chamber, it still would not have the force of law, but instead would declare legislative intent.

House Conservation Chairman Warren Goemaere, D-Roseville, indicated he has found little strong opposition among the 13 members.

Goemaere said game biologists have said a year-long moratorium would not hinder the state's deer program.

"Certainly every consideration will be given to the legislative resolution," said a department spokesman, who added that "we'd be in no position to say at this point what we'll do."

The spokesman noted that the decision on a moratorium would be made by the State Natural Resources Commission.

The resolution calls Michigan's herd of white-tailed deer the state's "most important wildlife resource, contributing hundreds of millions of dollars to the economy."

But, it adds, "declining deer numbers in large areas of the state's more northern deer range, and increasing numbers of hunters demanding deer have resulted in much vehement dissatisfaction with the degree of antlerless deer hunting which has been permitted in many areas of the state."

The moratorium, it says, should result in department use of "all of the abilities at its command" to assess the effects of not shooting antlerless deer for the year and report its findings by July 1971.

Schweigert and Sen. Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, meanwhile, called for creation of an Upper Peninsula Legislative Council.

Noting that Gov. William Milliken and Richard Whitmer, State Commerce Director, have suggested such a step, the two offered a resolution that would set up a council to include all legislators from north of the Straits of Mackinac.

The group would "be a unique concept and would afford a novel procedure for the focusing of attention on the problems of and the concentration of solutions relative to the unique problems of the Upper Peninsula," their resolution said.

The council would be empowered to spend up to $5,000 from the coffers of each chamber.

DOWAGIAC CASE

Youth, 17, Sentenced
In Bomb Hoax Calls

DOWAGIAC — Robert Cushway, 17, of 410 Oak street, has started a five-day jail sentence for making a series of bomb threat calls here last week.

Cushway pleaded guilty Tuesday in Fourth District court at Cassopolis to a charge of making threatening telephone calls. Judge Stog J. Lignell sentenced Cushway to serve five days in jail and to pay fine and costs totaling $153 or serve an additional 20 days in jail.

Dowagiac police arrested Cushway Tuesday afternoon after an investigation into five calls regarding bombs planted in local industrial plants. The calls were placed to the police department.

Calls were directed at Daisy-Heddon Co., Rudy Manufacturing Co., Jessup Door Co. and Du-Wel Aluminum Products, Inc. All were the subject of a single call, except Rudy which was threatened twice on separate days. Calls resulted in brief evacuations of plants while searches were made.

Police said Cushway dropped out of school after the tenth grade and listed his employment as a laborer.

Pair Asks Hearing In Robbery

Judge Sets Bonds
Totaling $7,000

Two men were charged in Berrien Fifth District court Wednesday with an armed robbery at Unley's grocery store in Niles Tuesday night.

Demanding examination on the charges were Samuel Crittle, 37, of 904 Main street, Buchanan, and Charles Doish, 19, of 923 Sycamore street, Niles. Judge John Iwanluk set bond for Crittle at $2,000 and at $5,000 for Doish.

A clerk at the store told police two men entered the store shortly after 7 p.m. One of them pointed a gun at her, she said, and demanded all the money. The clerk said she began to cry when another customer entered the store. The men left without the money, saying it was all an April Fool joke. Police said they were led to Crittle's apartment, where the arrests took place, because Crittle was involved in a minor accident near Unley's store at about the time of the alleged robbery.

Also Wednesday, Iden Boyd Wilken, 22, of 11 South Fifth street, Niles, was bound to circuit court on a charge of possessing marijuana at his home on March 24. He was returned to jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

MARIJUANA CHARGE

Louis Edinger, 23, of Osseo, Mich., and Carl Meachum, 24, of Hillsdale, both charged with possessing marijuana March 19 in Niles, pleaded guilty to reduced charges of use of marijuana. They remain free on $2,000 bond each pending a presentence investigation.

Judge John T. Hammond has dismissed charges against three Chicagoans accused of possessing marijuana March 11: Charles Whitty, 34; Harry Keller, 28, and Dottie Lee Sharp, 23. Judge Hammond, who took the cases under advisement following preliminary examinations March 20, ruled there was insufficient evidence presented to bind the trio to circuit court.

William Horton of Route 2, Snow road, Berrien Springs, charged with breaking and entering Niles high school March 31, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of malicious destruction of property valued under $100. Judge John Iwanluk suspended the fine and costs.

Jerome H. Wright, 30, of Route 1, Berrien Center, charged with carrying a concealed weapon in a car on March 28, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of reckless use of a firearm and paid $63.

Clarence Spear, 34, of 1386 Castle court, St. Joseph, pleaded innocent to assault and battery against Mrs. Irene Kubal in front of K-Mart Foods April 3. The incident allegedly took place during picketing of the store.

PLEADS GUILTY

Alonso Atkins, 18, of 691 East Vineyard street, Benton Harbor, pleaded guilty to assault and battery against Benton Harbor Patrolman Charles Harrison on March 21 and was sentenced to 30 days in jail and assessed $51. Dismissed on motion of the prosecutor's office were related charges of resisting arrest, use of assault and battery against Patrolman John Baldwin.

Richard Lee Finchout of 141 Bank street, Coloma, was sentenced to six months probation for non-support of his wife and child.

Judge Laity took under advisement after a preliminary examination the case of Charles E. Works, 31, of 1014 North Seventh street, Niles, charged with possessing a Sunoco Oil Co. credit card without consent of the owner.

Barry Dawson, 31, of 3491 Lake Shore drive, St. Joseph, was sentenced to one-year probation and assessed $103 for violation of financial responsibility and $53 for assault and battery.

Duane Doran Green, 33, of 433 Fairfax road, Coloma, was sentenced to three days and assessed $93 for driving while his operator's license was suspended.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Today's Puerto Rico Is Bustling Country

By SAM SHULSKY

With "growth stock" the magic ingredient of successful investment, it's interesting to report on a nearby "growth" country.

The waving palms and brilliant flamboyant trees are all there, as advertised. And so are the sun and ocean breezes. But today's Puerto Rico also presents a picture of a bustling community, raising living standards year by year through industrial expansion.

About a dozen years ago, this writer was a member of a group shown around the island by its government and the Government Development Bank. Only recently I returned to it. This time as a tourist intent on getting some relief from winter, but amazed by the expansion in industry, in housing, road construction, consumer services.

In the last decade the island's gross national product has soared 150 per cent, per capita income has doubled and the average family income is now around the $5,500 mark.

Thanks to Puerto Rico's tariff-free relationship with the U.S. mainland, to availability of labor, and to its 10- to 17-year tax concessions for new industries, hundreds of manufacturers from many areas of the world have opened production plants there, with the biggest gains shown in the production of clothing, electrical components and drugs. In fact, in the latter field, new plants by firms such as Parke-Davis, Schering, Pfizer, Carter-Wallace and Eli Lilly have placed the island among the world's leading pharmaceutical centers — to say nothing of the architectural beauty of these plants which many mainland cities might well envy.

In one single month recently, the efforts of the Economic Development Administration resulted in the establishment of 19 new plants, representing a $5 million investment and providing 1,700 new jobs in various fields.

The search for new industries is carried on constantly by the Development Administration and associated agencies. As of the moment, negotiations are being carried on for establishment of additional light as well as heavy manufacturing plants by West German and Japanese corporations. A mainland U.S. shipyard is also surveying various sites on the island for construction of a shipyard.

Heavy industry especially is being sought as a means of making the greatest inroads into unemployment among the lesser skilled of the island's 2,250,000 labor force. During the last decade, while manufacturing employment was rising more than 50 per cent the number employed in agriculture has fallen by about the same percentage. The biggest declines have been in the sugar fields, with reluctance to work as cane cutters threatening the island's once important position as a world sugar producer.

Recent attempts to recover its former importance in sugar have not been too successful and a trip around the island discloses that more land is being put into raising cattle, into suburban housing and into tourist accommodations.

Tomorrow: The growth of tourism — second article of two-part series.

Niles Auto Smashups Injure 10

NILES — Ten persons were hurt in three separate automobile accidents that occurred south of town in Niles township Wednesday, according to state police from the Niles post.

George Ramon Collins, 20, 400 Brush road, Niles, suffered a fractured left shoulder when the car he was driving at 7:30 a.m. struck another car driven by Magnus Alfred Welch, 60, 1152 Centerfield, Niles. Troopers said Welch disregarded a stop sign on Gumwood road and drove into the path of the Collins vehicle which was traveling on Redfield road. Collins was listed in good condition this morning at Pawating hospital. Welch was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way.

Five persons were treated and released at Pawating hospital following a two-car crash at 8:45 p.m. on US-31 near North street. Troopers said George Gilling, 64, of 1422 South Jerome, Niles, told them he blacked out and drove his car across the center line of the road where it hit another car driven by Robert Eugene Johnson, 42, of 1332 Oak, Niles. Gilling was ticketed for driving on the wrong side of the road, troopers said.

Injured were Gilling with a laceration over the eye; Johnson, 10, injured; Jenny Johnson, 42, 1332 Oak, Niles, fractured finger; Becky Johnson, 10, same address, and Susan Johnson, 15, same address, both whiplash.

At 9:15 p.m., four persons were hurt in a two-car crash at the intersection of Fulkerson and US-31, troopers said. A car driven by Diane A. Taberski, 22, South Bend, was struck by another car driven by Edward Paul Blake, 19, 1925 South Third, Niles. Troopers said Miss Taberski was making a left turn when her car was hit by the Blake car. Blake told troopers he was coming through the amber light. Miss Taberski and her passenger, Carol Ann Tava, 22, South Bend, were treated and released at Pawating hospital. Blake and his passenger, David Borley, 65, South Bend, sought their own medical treatment.

for redemption or not, provided the School District has money available for such redemption with the paying agent.

The bond proceeds are to be used for: (A) $2,335,000 for the purpose of erecting, furnishing and equipping an addition to and remodeling each of the following buildings: the Lakeshore High School, the Hollywood, Roosevelt and Stewart Elementary Schools; remodeling the Baroda Elementary School Building; constructing and equipping a bus maintenance garage; acquiring additional land for site purposes; and developing and improving sites. (B) $800,000 for the purpose of erecting, furnishing and equipping an auditorium as an addition to the Lakeshore High School Building.

For the purpose of awarding the bonds the interest cost of each bid will be computed by determining, at the rate or rates specified therein, the total dollar value of all interest on the bonds from May 1, 1970 to their maturity and deducting therefrom any premium. The bonds will be awarded to the bidder whose bid on the above computation produces the lowest interest cost to the School District. Each bidder shall state in his bid the interest cost to the School District, computed in the manner above specified. No proposal for the purchase of less than all the bonds or at a price less than 100 per cent of their par value will be considered.

The bonds of this issue may be registrable as to principal only on books kept by the paying agent.

The bonds are to be issued pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 12, Part II, Act 269, Public Acts of Michigan, 1955, and the School District is authorized and required by law to levy upon all taxable property therein such ad valorem taxes, as may be necessary to pay these bonds and the interest thereon, without limitation as to rate or amount.

A certified or Cashier's check in an amount of $58,700.00, drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company and payable to the order of the Treasurer of the School District, must accompany each bid as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder, to be forfeited as liquidated damages if such bid is not accepted and the bidder fails to take up and pay for the bonds. No interest shall be allowed on the good faith checks and checks of unsuccessful bidders will be promptly returned to each bidder's representative or by registered mail. Payment for said bonds shall be made in Federal Reserve Funds.

Bids shall be conditioned upon the unqualified approval of opinion of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, Attorneys, 2500 Detroit Bank and Trust Building, Detroit, Michigan, a copy of which opinion will be printed on the reverse side of each bond, and the original of which will be furnished without expense to the purchaser of the bonds at the delivery thereof. The School District shall furnish bonds ready for execution at its expense. Bonds will be delivered without expense to the purchaser at a place to be designated by the purchaser.

In the event that prior to delivery of the bonds the interest received by private holders from bonds of the same type as a matter shall be taxable by the terms of any Federal income tax law, ruling, regulation or court decision, successful bidder may, at his election, be relieved of his obligations under the contract to purchase the bonds, and, in such case, the deposit accompanying his bid will be returned.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Envelopes containing the bids should be plainly marked "Proposal for Bonds".
